

Gambrel roof

This structure can be described as a pitched roof erected on the uppermost floor and constructed entirely from a wooden frame – in principle a one-storey timbered building placed on an otherwise (usually) brick-built house.

The stability of the timbered roof is achieved by the triangle formed by the joist posts and (steep) rafters, as well as the cross braces included in its other sections.

